SUBJECT: EZIZ Update: Inactivated Influenza VISs
DATE: August 8, 2013

---

Dear EZIZ Users,

Please see this update from the CDC about flu VISs.

The Inactivated Influenza vaccine information statement has received a slight update and is now available.

- A minor change has been made to the first bullet in Section 3 (Some people should not get this vaccine), removing a specific mention of egg allergy, and noting the availability of an egg-free influenza vaccine.
- Note that the previous (original) version of this VIS was not incorrect . . . and providers who have already printed out copies of that version do NOT need to discard them. The edition date (July 26, 2013) of this VIS has not changed.
- Severely egg-allergic patients should be made aware that an egg-free flu vaccine is available. Details will be found in the upcoming ACIP influenza recommendations for the 2013-14 flu season.
