

As students across the country have resumed schooling (either through virtual or in-person learning), COVID-19 has not only impacted how they learn but has also limited the opportunities for face-to-face appointments with healthcare professionals. As a partner in the Keep Up The Rates campaign, you are invited to participate in a special webinar presentation:

Learning at School or at Home: Why Routine Vaccinations Are As Important As Ever

Tuesday, October 27, 2020 at 9:00 AM PT

Join NFID for this complimentary webinar on the impact of COVID-19 on immunizations for all students—learning in-person or remotely, individually or in “learning pods,” as well as their parents and families, with suggestions for safely administering routine vaccines during this challenging time. NFID will be joined by representatives from partner organizations to provide insightful presentations.

- NFID President Patricia N. Whitley-Williams, MD will be joined by Craig Roberts, PA-C, MS, Epidemiologist Emeritus, University of Wisconsin-Madison (representing the American College Health Association) and Laurie Combe, MN, RN, NCSN, President of the National Association of School Nurses.

Learning at School or at Home: Why Routine Vaccinations Are As Important As Ever
October 27, 2020 at 12:00 PM ET

Patricia N. Whitley-Williams, MD
NFID President

Craig Roberts, PA-C, MS
American College Health Association

Laurie Combe, MN, RN, NCSN
President, National Association of School Nurses

nfid.org/webinars

